I join the NGO, Adiwasi Vanwasi Sewa Kendra in the year 2006. The reason I joined Adiwasi Vanwasi Sewa Kendra is because I am very

One reason is because I wanted to give something back to the society. Another is for the betterment of the society. I joined Adiwasi Vanwasi Sewa Kendra in the year 2006. I was looking for an avenue to serve the people in any ways that I can.

The main reason that I joined this NGO is for their selfless services that they have rendered the community for many years without any sponsorship or aid from any quarters. I wish Adiwasi Vanwasi Sewa Kendra will keep up the spirit and keep serving the society as they always have been. I understood that there is so much that we could do if only we could come and put our heads and hearts together. Creating awareness among the citizens and particularly among the youth, which I consider as the powerhouse of the society was very prompting. Helping others and making easier the lives of others/ fellow people was all that I always dreamt of Experiencing life outside Bihar and comparing with the situation of my fellow citizens at home haunted me. I therefore am proud to be a part of Adiwasi Vanwasi Sewa Kendra and will continue to extend my helping hand as long as I can.

Organizing Blood Donation Camp

This pandemic has resulted in development of severe panic and fear among the people for their safety and survival. Many countries have enforced lockdown to all activities leading to the postponement or cancellation of many sporting, religious, political, and cultural events. Nationwide all schools, colleges and universities have been closed. Misinformation about the virus has been circulated through social media and the mass media.

These factors have seriously affected one significant area of healthcare delivery—availability of adequate quantities of safe and quality blood in the Blood Centres across the country. More than 80% of the nation blood supply comes from voluntary non-remunerated blood donors (VNRD), who through their altruistic act keeps the shelves of the Blood Centre filled up with blood units throughout the year.

Organizing Blood Donation Camp

Ever since the lockdown has been announced in the country from 25th March 2020 onwards, all movements of citizens have come to a standstill. All the educational institutions, industries, social organizations, IT sectors are closed down across the country. Outdoor blood donation camps are mainly organized by these sectors. Suddenly without any prior arrangements, blood donation came to a grinding halt. The situation became worse with no blood donation camps being organized, no people were willing to visit blood center for donation and many healthcare workers were put into quarantine. With a large number of populations being affected with COVID-19 and many of their family members and close contacts going for either institutional or home quarantine, the population of eligible blood donors is also shrinking. This is a matter of big concern for National blood supply. In this crucial situation AVSK organized Blood Donation camps to support Administration of Kaimur, Bihar

Pulse Polio Drive

The World Health Organization (WHO) defines polio or poliomyelitis as “a highly infectious viral disease, which mainly affects young children. The virus is transmitted by person-to-person, spread mainly through the faecal-oral route or, less frequently, by a common vehicle (e.g. contaminated water or food) and multiplies in the intestine, from where it can invade the nervous system and can cause paralysis. Initial symptoms of polio include fever, fatigue, headache, vomiting, stiffness in the neck, and pain in the limbs. In a small proportion of cases, the disease causes paralysis, which is often permanent. There is no cure for polio; it can only be prevented by immunization.”

Adiwasi Vanwasi Sewa Kendra continues work regarding pulse polio Drive through awareness on polio and also provided easy facilities to needy community to impart polio drops for their childrens.

Health & Family Welfare Program

Fighting COVID- 19 Alongside Local Community

Corona virus disease 2019 (COVID-19) is a contagious disease caused by severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2). The first case was identified in Wuhan, China, in 31 December 2019. The disease has since spread worldwide; leading to an on-going pandemic. On 20 January, the WHO confirmed human-to-human transmission of the disease. On 30 January, the WHO declared the outbreak a Public Health Emergency of International Concern and warned all countries to prepare. On 11 March, the WHO said that the outbreak constituted a pandemic.

By 5 October the same year, the WHO estimated that a tenth of the world's population had been infected with the novel virus. This is definitely going to affect world economy. Economic turmoil associated with the COVID-19 pandemic has had wide-ranging and severe impacts upon financial markets, including stock, bond, and commodity (including crude oil and gold) markets.

Major events included a described Russia–Saudi Arabia oil price war, which after failing to reach an OPEC+ agreement resulted in a collapse of crude oil prices and a stock market crash in March 2020. The effects upon markets are part of the corona virus recession and are among the many economic impacts of the pandemic. As of August 25, 2021, the outbreak of the corona virus disease (COVID-19) had been confirmed in over 210 countries and territories. Other countries and regions have imposed global restrictions that apply to all foreign countries and territories, or prevent their own citizens from travelling overseas. The first case of COVID-19 in India, which originated from China, was reported on 30 January 2020.

More than 13.53 million reported cases of COVID-19 infection and more than 170,179 deaths as of April 12, 2021. The per day cases peaked mid-September in India with over 90,000 cases reported per day and have since come down to below 15,000 as of January 2021. On 11th April, India became the second country in the world to record more than 150,000 cases in a single day. By mid-May 2020, eight cities accounted for around half of all reported cases in the country: Mumbai, Delhi, Ahmedabad, Bangalore, Chennai, Pune, Bihar and Kolkata.

Adhwasi Vanwasi Sewa Kendra

Bihar :

The COVID-19 pandemic was first confirmed in the Indian state of Bihar on 17 March 2020. The Health and Family Welfare department of Government of Bihar has confirmed a total of 6,06,455 COVID-19 positive cases, including 18,603 active cases, 10,378 deaths and 5,77,474 recoveries, as of 9 April 2021. On March 22, a lockdown was announced in 23 areas of the state until March 27. Restrictions during the lockdown included: (i) Prohibition on public gatherings of over seven people, (ii) suspension of public transport, and (iii) closure of shops, commercial establishments, offices and factories.

Out of 1.23 crore migrant workers who returned to their home States during the COVID-19 lockdown, 50 per cent (61,34,943) were from three States— Uttar Pradesh, Bihar and West Bengal. Another example of the intersection of factors resulting in heightened vulnerability to the pandemic and increased fragility relates to livelihoods and food security. Reduced capacity to pay for food, essential services and housing due to loss of income and decreased remittances could increase both malnutrition and evictions, among others.

In consequence, people could also suffer from discrimination and stigma associated with displacement, poverty or other marginalization characteristics showing how COVID-19 could indirectly aggravate the effects of other causes of humanitarian needs. We commonly understand that COVID-19 has originated in urban areas and every first case of COVID-19 in any country is found in the city (urban areas). Urbanization determines the population density, and both have relationship with COVID-19 cases. Preventive measures from the Corona virus infection are use of masks, soaps, sanitizers, and proper personal health care. Economic empowerment is directly related to use of these preventive measures.

We can understand the economically weaker section or non-working population would be more vulnerable to this disease. Poor housing structures would make the residents more vulnerable to this disease. We understand that forest supplies fresh air and reduce the burden of air pollution. Fresh air may reduce the burden of COVID-19 cases as well.

Combat COVID-19

COVID-19 Lockdown has already puts Poor at Risk and disproportionately hurt marginalized communities due to loss of livelihood and lack of food, shelter, health, and other basic needs. The world is facing an unprecedented challenge with communities and economies everywhere affected by the growing COVID-19 pandemic. The world is coming together to combat the COVID-19 pandemic The novel corona virus has created a major universal health pandemic challenging the existing health systems and swiftly crippling the economies and livelihood options around the globe. Though there is no discrimination, the ability to withstand the attack of COVID-19 and to overcome the distress varies from the rich to the poor, from the haves to the have not. The people from marginalized communities are impacted disproportionately because of the lockdown announced on 25 March 2020. There has been a significant disruption in livelihood options and economic conditions of the Scheduled Caste (SC) and Scheduled Tribe Communities in the remote and far-flung areas of the Country. Migrant labourers who have managed to return created an additional burden at household level. Apart from social discrimination, these communities, particularly women and children are quite vulnerable to such disasters owing to pre-existing health challenges or difficulties in accessing care, compromised dietary practices, poor affordability, low educational levels and the lack of awareness. Adiwasi Vanwasi Sewa Kendra Distributed Nutritional food and grocery materials like 05 Kg Potato, 05 Kg Onion ,02 kg pulses and 10 kg Rice among 200 People surrounding at Kaimur during covid 19.

COVID-19 Awareness Program

Rumor and false information on COVID-19 is a major concern in the rural and slum areas. Thus to prevent rumor and support local administration, AVSK team spread awareness program specially in rural areas through running audio van, Door to Door campaign along with Hygiene kit distribution (Mask and Soaps, and sanitizer). The programs were organized in Kaimur at Bihar on 10.04.2020 covering with farming community, tribal belt, slums and other rural community.

Joining Hands with local community for Better Livelihood

Cultivation of edible mushroom is one of the important and viable livelihood options for the youth as well as women farmers of the entire world in the entire world. Mushroom has become popular food in present days due to its rich nutritive value. Now a days, vegetarian people prefers mushroom as a source of protein. According to Chang and Miles (1991), the amount of protein in mushroom is double than any other vegetables. So, it is called vegetable protein. All types of edible mushroom contain varying degree of protein and fiber. It contains about 85-95% water, 3% protein, 4% carbohydrates, 0.1% fats and 1% minerals and vitamins (Tewari, 1986). They also contain B vitamins as well as powerful antioxidant called selenium which helps to support the immune system and prevent damage to cell and tissues. Mushroom cultivation can help in reducing poverty and strengthen livelihoods through the generation of a fast yielding and nutritious source of food and a reliable source of income. Mushroom production is simple, low cost, and suitable for rural areas, is labour intensive and can provide employment in both the rural areas and semi-urban. Mushroom is an indoor crop, grown independent of sunlight and do not require fertile land. Women can involve themselves in mushroom cultivation by utilizing their spare time without hampering household responsibilities. Promotion of mushroom cultivation by women farmer could relieve pressure on men and can uplift the status of women through additional earning. Mushroom cultivation requires less initial capital investment, and there are possibilities of round the year production. Mushroom substrate is clean agricultural waste material which is readily available and can be produced in temporary structure. The Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) has recommended mushrooms as a food item contributing to protein nutrition of the developing countries. Hence, there is a demand for technology at grass root level to enable people to break away from the poverty trap AVSK organized one day training program on for Women & youth. On that day free of cost one tailoring machine & one wheel chair distributed among needy people by AVSK almost 160 members present on that program.

Step to Spread Awareness Amongst Farmer

Farmer Awareness Program

The basic objective of the farmer awareness programmes was to give exposure to the Kaimur of Bihar farmers on various agricultural marketing reforms, modern marketing methods, direct marketing, group marketing, interface with the experts of commodities specialist and marketing personnel, ware housing, pledge financing and scientific storage of agricultural commodities in India and to upgrade their skilled on the subject. AVSK organized Farmer awareness program at Kaimr, Bihar on these program 150 farmers were present on that program.

Environment Protection Program

Environment Awareness Program

The COVID-19 Pandemic has become a major public health concern worldwide, which can impact environmental sustainability and social responsibility, as well as people's quality of life. In this context, environmental awareness, sustainable consumption and social actions of people have been effectively changed, as a period of quarantine, social isolation and health crisis caused by Pandemic has been experienced. AVSK organised Environment Awareness program we believes in prevention is better than cure so that we have organized this environment program at Kaimur Bihar.
